

Other Bearings

The main functions of the bearings in electric motors are to support and reduce frictions. Thus, characteristics such as precision and noise of the bearings will directly affect their applications ad lifespan. Deep groove ball bearings are used in industrial electric motors, generators and servo motors etc. We have extensive experience in the applications of our various bearings products in many industries, and will be able to meet the needs of customers.

